Introduction and History

Hyderabad is a city, district and division in the Sindh province. The city is an administrative headquarters lying on the most northern hill of the Ganjo Takkar ridge just east of the River Indus. Being the third largest city of Pakistan, Hyderabad is a communication center, connected by rail with Peshawar and Karachi.

Founded in 1768 on the site of the ancient town of Nirun-Kot by Ghulam Shah Kalhora, the saintly ruler of Sindh, it was named after the prophet Mohammed's son-in-law, Ali, also known as Haidar. It remained the capital of Sindh under the Talpur rulers who succeeded the Kalhoras till 1843 when, after the nearby battles of Miani and Dabo, it surrendered to the British, the capital was then transferred to Karachi.

Incorporated as a municipality in 1853, it is an important commercial and industrial center. Its economic activities include textile, sugar, cement, and hosiery mills, manufacturing of glass, soap, ice, paper, and plastics. There are hide tanneries and sawmills. Ornamented silks, silver-work, gold-work and lacquer ware are also some of its exclusive products. Noteworthy antiquities include the tombs of the Kalhora and Talpur ruler, palaces of the former amirs of Sindh. Newly developed settlements and industrial estates surround the congested old city area. A noteworthy characteristic of this city is badgirs (wind-catchers) fixed to housetops to catch sea breezes during the hot summer season. A hospital, municipal gardens, zoo, sports stadium, and several literary societies are in the city. The University of Sindh with 32 affiliated colleges was founded in 1947 in Karachi and moved to Hyderabad in 1951, where it lies across the Indus. Other education needs are served by numerous government colleges, the Liaquat Medical College and specialized vocational institutions.

It remained the capital of the emirate of Sindh until the British general Sir Charles James Napier conquered Sindh in 1843. From 1947 to 1955 Hyderabad was the capital of Sindh Province; the new capital was shifted to Hyderabad. In 1766 the Kalhora ruler constructed a fort half a square km in area and still stands today. In 1843 the British arrived and defeated the Talpurs, Completing their Conquest of Sindh.

It's also a second largest city of Sindh Province. It has over 3 Million population. The city has one of the most interesting bazaars of the country, which is known to be the longest bazaar in Asia. There are two very well arranged ethnological museums in the city One The Sindh Museum and the other the Institute of Sindhology Museum.

Both museums present an excellent portrait of cultural and tribal life of Sindh. The city is transit point for the tours from Karachi to the Interior of Sindh A visit to Kalhora Monuments close to the city gate is worth a visit, Mausoleums are beautifully decorated with glazed tiles and frescos. There are also two forts from 18th & 19th Century to see here.

Famous for its cool breeze and balmy nights, and known for its Bombay Bakery Cakes, Its delicate bangles and the paagalkhana called Giddu Bandar, Hyderabad is Sindh's Second largest city, a city its inhabitants claim is the most beautiful in the world, Its spacious houses are known for their manghan, roshandans or ventilators and it is also known as "mangham jo shahar."

Agriculture Sector

Agriculture is a very important aspect of economy at Hyderabad. Hyderabad and its surroundings are famous for world class quality agriculture produce which is consumed both locally and export abroad. The following information is related exclusively to the agriculture and its supporting sectors at RBC – Hyderabad.

IRRIGATION

The main source of irrigation in Hyderabad is River Indus and its canals. Kotri Barrage is responsible for the irrigation of agriculture land at Hyderabad.

Kotri Barrage

Kotri Barrage was constructed in 1955 on River Indus with a maximum design discharge of 875,000 cusecs. The barrage has 44 bays, each 60 feet wide. The length of the left and right guide bank is 6,000 ft. The maximum flood level height of Kotri barrage is 43.1 feet. Kotri Barrage was constructed to irrigate Fulleli, Pinyari and Kolari canals through lined channels and enhance agriculture in the lower Sindh region. The need to release some amount of water below Kotri Barrage, which is the last diversion point on the Indus River System, has been recognized by most experts. The purpose is to provide the sailaba (flood) Irrigation in an area of approximately 120, 000 hectares and keep the 280-kilometer Indus River Reach from the Kotri Barrage to the Arabian Sea, alive. Furthermore, any amount of water released below Kotri would help in checking seawater intrusion.

Livestock Sector

Livestock is an important source of essential items of human diet and draught power. The activities of this sub-sector account for 10 to 25% of the incomes of small farmers and landless livestock producers depending on their accessibility to the market. There has been a gradual increase in livestock products such as milk, beef, mutton, poultry meat and eggs over the years. Efforts are also being made to improve the genetic potential through selective and cross-breeding programmes especially in cattle and buffaloes. Cross-bred animals are early maturing and good producers of milk.

Forestry Sector

Forests play an important role in improving the economic condition of the country and are, therefore, considered as a backbone of the national economy. They not only provide timber, firewood, and medicinal herbs but also provide a vital coverage to the country's watersheds and regulate the supply of water in the rivers. They also sustain country's wildlife and provide unlimited recreational facilities. They are vital for keeping the environment in equilibrium by increasing the capacity of the land to hold and conserve water, prevent soil erosion, desertification, water logging, salinity and controlling pollution by supplying clean air.
